MARKETS PERFORMANCE & NEWS

- GLOBAL

U.S. stocks closed higher on Tuesday, powered by the latest batch of earnings from AI-related companies such as Caterpillar and Palantir that assuaged demand concerns. Nasdaq and S&P 500 gained 2.6% and 1.8%, respectively, while Dow Jones increased by 1.7%. Asian stock markets were up on Wednesday morning as robust earnings and renewed appetite for tech propelled Wall Street to record highs, while hopes for progress on opening the Strait of Hormuz pushed down on oil prices and bond yields. Nikkei 225 climbed 3.2%, while MSCI Asia Pacific index and CSI 300 rose 2.2% and 1.0%, respectively.^{Reuters}

MARKET BRIEF

The index trades above the resistance line making test of the 55-dema with intraday penetration. To succeed on the trend-line break levels require to close above the 90-dema as the first sign of a turnaround for the downtrend from 11,592. The last two sessions have pulled the MACD towards a positive crossover though it remains below the zero line which is the clear benchmark to gain above for a sustained uptrend. The RSI also needs to build above its June peak of 56.15 to strengthen the index breakout and build above the averages. Immediate support is at the trend-line around 10,790 and up to 10,779.

On the downside, the index has regained the 10,652-10,779 congestion range as support. On momentum, the RSI has recovered from a minor oversold state at 28.04 and faces a test of resistance at 56.15. Holding above 56.15 would signal a build-up in momentum that would push levels above the shorter averages.

STOCK BRIEF

The downtrend from 61.45-43.20 is under a revival that initially took place at the trend-line break in mid-July. The key development from that breakout is the recovery above the 200-dema during the last two sessions. Yesterday's gains corrected the downtrend by 38.2% at $0.15. Support would look to build above the 200-dema for a further recovery towards 52.30 & 54.50. Risk for this outlook is on break below 46.80.

The decline from 26.40 to 13.88 is under recovery, with yesterday's close above the 23.6% retracement at 17.31. The current target on
