22Market brief

Overcoming the 55-dema has become a real challenge restricting the index from moving above the red body candlestick of 06 August. Thus, the bearish impact of this candle is still in place which is further enhanced by its mid-point at 10,855 acting as a struggling point to hold above.

The recovery over the last three sessions has formed small body candlesticks which continues to reflect uncertainty on upside potential. A point has reached now that if levels fail to advance above the 55-dema then pressure would resume and challenge the recent lows around 10,809 to give way. After yesterday's red candle and persisting resistance at the 55-dema take a cautious stance on short-term exposures.

Buy from current levels and up to 59.00. Target 71.35 & 74.90 to sell.
Stop on break below 56.40.

26 Stock brief

After a recent surge from 40.64-86.30 in nine consecutive sessions between Jun.-Jul. the stock has corrected to test support of the 55 & 90-dema's. The 200-dema while currently above is on testing grounds of regaining support.

Short-term price action is looking to recover above the key average and head towards a range from 71.35-74.90. This recovery would start to establish support above the 200-dema and consolidate towards any broader upside. Risk for this outlook is on break below Monday's low of 56.40.
